NEW YORK (AP)—The Roy M. Cohn trial was declared a mistrial Sunday night by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Archie O. Dawson because of the death of a juror's father.

The death of James Gaston, father of juror Arabelle Maybrey, broke up four days of deliberations after a 25-day trial. Cohn, former aide to the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin.

Dawson said the defense refused to consent to a verdict by 11 jurors, although the government agreed.

"This means the time spent on this trial will be wasted," the judge said.

Rail Crisis Report Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rail negotiations continued at the White House Sunday with President Johnson expecting a report Monday on prospects of averting a nationwide strike next Saturday.

The White House said no definite time has been scheduled for presentation to Johnson of a report from a special team of Federal mediators.

Johnson said last Wednesday, "We should know definitely, whether the parties to this dispute will settle it by the process of bargaining and by responsible reason."

Cop In 'Copter Catches Cons

PLATTSBOROUGH, Neb. (AP)—A state trooper in a helicopter captured two Nebraska penitentiary escapees this afternoon and shortly afterward three others were flushed from hiding places and caught in the same rugged Missouri River game preserve.

The five, described as extremely dangerous, fled from the penitentiary in Lincoln Saturday night through a tunnel they had chipped through rock and concrete.

AF Studies Mystery Crash

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)—Air Force officers were still trying to determine Sunday why two C-119 Flying Boxcars crashed Saturday night killing 17 men.

A spokesman at Clinton County Air Force Base here who refused to be identified said it appeared the two planes "may have collided while on their approach to the airfield."

The crash occurred shortly before 9 p.m. on flat farmland about five miles north of here. Both planes were based at Clinton County AFB.

Six Killed In Plane Crash

CANAS, Wash. (AP)—A pilot out to fly with his four children and one of their playmates crashed just before noon Sunday and all six were killed.

The pilot, Lee Roggenkamp, 28, Canas, had just circled his home some six miles north of Canas. A neighbor boy coming out of Sunday school looked up and saw a wing dip, the plane stayed down and the plane disappeared behind a hill. Then he heard a thud.

The boy, Walter Steeves, ran to where he could see the wreckage, then called the sheriff's office.

The plane hit only a few hundred yards from the Roggenkamp home, but was hidden from it by a hill. Mrs. Roggenkamp was at home but did not see it.

Lodge Team Gets Go-Sign

HONOLULU (AP)—The Sunday Star-Bulletin and Advertiser said Sunday that U. S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam Henry Cabot Lodge has reluctantly permitted his supporters to campaign for the Republican presidential nomination to block Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The newspaper, in a copyright story by Buck Buchwald, managing editor of the Honolulu Advertiser, quoted "unimpeachable sources" as saying Lodge does not want to run for president.

GOP Chairmen Like Nixon

Vice President Richard M. Nixon has topped a nationwide poll of Republican county chairmen and other party leaders as the most likely winner of the GOP nomination for president in 1964.

However, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona ran far ahead, among 1,606 Republicans participating in the poll, as their personal preference for the nomination.

The survey was conducted by The Associated Press and results were released Sunday.

Correspondents in 50 states and the District of Columbia questioned more than 3,000 county chairmen, vice chairmen, town leaders and other party officials. The survey began April 1.

2 Part Survey

The questionnaire contained two parts—"Who is your personal preference to be the nominee?" and "Whom do you think the convention will nominate?"

Following are the results:

Most Likely to be Nominated: Nixon—526
Goldwater—427
Lodge—189

Scranton—159
Rockefeller—50
Others—19

No opinion expressed—223

Your Personal Preference:
Goldwater—722
Nixon—301
Lodge—193
Scranton—191
Rockefeller—84
Others—27
No preference—88

This was the third such survey by The Associated Press. The first was taken last October and the second in December after the assassination of President Kennedy.

Goldwater was a runaway winner in the first poll. Then his political stock dropped sharply in the December findings, after President Johnson took office. However, he continued to lead the field until Nixon passed him in one part of the April survey.

Scranton Votes

Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to South Viet Nam, and Pennsylvania's Gov. William W. Scranton both received some support in the first two polls. In the latest, they received many more votes—although, like Nixon, they have not campaigned in any primary elections nor said they are candidates for the nomination.

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, an avowed candidate, ran last in October and lost ground in both the December and April polls.

The Republican nominating convention is scheduled to open in San Francisco on July 13. Delegate votes total 1,308, with 655 needed for nomination.

Goldwater now has 162 first-ballot votes from delegates instructed, pledged or favorable to his candidacy. No other potential nominee approaches this figure as of today.

No Opinion

A striking feature of the newest AP poll was the large number of respondents—223—who replied "no opinion" to the question of who is most likely to win the nomination.

A number said the results of the New Hampshire primary have clouded the Republican outlook to the point where the convention will be wide open.

Goldwater and Rockefeller campaigned in New Hampshire, but a write-in campaign gave Lodge the state's 14 delegates.

Disagreement

Wide disagreement as expressed by those who answered the AP questionnaire as to the effect of the New Hampshire primary on Goldwater's chances.

Goldwater's support has been slipping since Nov. 22 (the date of President John F. Kennedy's assassination) and confidence in his ability as a campaigner has been injured by the New Hampshire primary, said Robert J. Corber, of Arlington, Va.

But Earl A. McClelland, of Adams County, Iowa, said: "If Sen. Goldwater goes down, so goes the greatest opportunity party has had to strengthen itself and to draw the line between the Republicans and Democrats."

The California primary, June 2, as cited by many Republicans as probably the critical test for Goldwater and Rockefeller. Many predicted that if Goldwater wins he will win the nomination.

Stay With Candidate

The state has 86 delegates and the winner takes all. California law does not bind them tightly to the winner, but in practice the delegates stay with the candidate until he releases them.

AP offices in California received replies from 56 county chairmen on the outlook for the primary with 38 picking Goldwater, and 5 Rockefeller. Three called the race "a tossup," and 10 said they have "no opinion."

The Republican primary in Oregon, on May 15, also could be critical for all the avowed and potential presidential nominees.

A survey of GOP county chairmen and vice chairmen in 36 counties indicated they believe Goldwater and Lodge are running neck and neck. Of 44 replies, 22 picked Goldwater to win, and 21 said it will be Lodge. The other vote went to Nixon.

Scranton Wins Backing Of County GOP Leaders

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Gov. Scranton is the almost unanimous choice of the state's Republican county chairmen for the GOP presidential nomination.

And nearly half believe he will be picked by the national convention to face President Johnson.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who had more than half of the chairmen's votes in the first Associated Press poll last October, received two votes this time.

Of the 67 Republican leaders, Scranton polled 58 votes on the question: "Who is your personal preference for the nomination?" Four picked Richard Nixon, two Goldwater and three were undecided.

This was the AP's third poll of state GOP chairmen. In the first Scranton received only 11 votes. In the second, after the assassination of President Kennedy, Scranton had 18 votes as Goldwater dropped from 38 to eight.

On the second question—"Whom do you believe the convention will nominate?"—opinion was more sharply divided this time.

Scranton was the choice of 28 who were certain the governor—expected to go to the GOP conclave in San Francisco in July as the Keystone state's favorite son—will be drafted.

Scranton has said again and again he is not a candidate, doesn't want the job and will accept it only if drafted openly and honestly.

Nixon, the 1960 Republican standard-bearer, was tabbed by 10 chairmen as the possible nominee again. Four thought it would be Nixon or Scranton. Thirteen said they couldn't make any guess now whom the convention would pick.

Goldwater didn't get any vote on his own, although in two cases he was named jointly with Nixon as "either or" and, similarly, once with Scranton.

Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to Viet Nam, who was the write-in winner in the New Hampshire primary, was the choice of one chairman as the probable convention choice.

Two others said the delegates would pick either Scranton or Lodge, while four guesses it would be either Lodge or Nixon.

In the first poll, 16 chairmen thought Goldwater would get the nomination. He was picked by three in the second poll.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York also just about dropped out of sight in the latest balloting, although he didn't make much of a showing previously.

One chairman thought Rockefeller would be the nominee, but none picked him directly as the strongest GOP candidate today.

Previously his best showing was two votes.

Maurice L. Epstein, Bradford county, who has been supporting Scranton from the beginning said the Pennsylvania governor "is the logical person, he has the training, the ability and has no marks against him. The people rejected both Rockefeller and Goldwater. The field is wide open and Bill Scranton will get the nod."

Harold Kresge, Monroe — "Scranton is my choice."

Moulton L.C. Frantz, Lehigh — "The convention will nominate Scranton if he announces he is a candidate."

Joseph Ide, Northampton — "Scranton is the foremost governor in the nation. I think he has come a long way in his short term as a politician. His greatest accomplishment was passage of the new unemployment compensation law."

Henry W. Lark, Northumberland — "It is increasingly evident that Scranton best suits the image of a president that the people want."

Leonard Thomas, Schuylkill — "Bill Scranton is my choice, but I believe Rockefeller will be nominated."

Robert Goodman, acting chairman of Clearfield — "I'm for Scranton. The convention will nominate either Scranton or Nixon."

John L. Buck, Columbia — "The convention will nominate Scranton because there is a surge working for him, and it will be nationwide before long."

Henry S. Fuller, Lackawanna — "I'm for Bill Scranton now. Scranton is a conservative, perhaps not as conservative as Goldwater."

James Post, Luzerne — "My choice is Scranton."

B. Clair Jones, Lycoming — "Bill Scranton is the best man in the field."

Merle E. Dickinson, McKean — "Right now I'm undecided."

John V. Wherry Sr., Mercer — "I personally prefer Scranton followed by Lodge. But I would not be surprised if Nixon or Goldwater get the nomination."

Scranton Points To Johnson Weakness

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania predicted Sunday that the Johnson administration's foreign policies will be a prime issue in the presidential campaign.

Scranton, who has said he would accept an honest draft for the GOP presidential nomination, said civil rights, budget balancing and "morals in government"—as represented by the Bobby Baker case—also will figure in the outcome.

The governor was asked on "From the People," a taped radio program by Radio Press International, for comment on U.S. policies in South Viet Nam, where Henry Cabot Lodge, winner of the New Hampshire GOP presidential primary, represents the Democratic administration as U.S. ambassador.

"From what I know from looking at the outside," Scranton replied, "I would say we are in serious jeopardy indeed, and this is quite clear to everybody I think, and if we're going to win that struggle down there we're going to have to do a great deal, probably more effort than is presently going on."

But Scranton opposed a proposal by Richard M. Nixon, a possible candidate for the Republican nomination, to extend the war to North Viet Nam.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., an announced candidate, also favors a toughening of U.S. tactics in the anti-guerrilla war.

Scranton added that he doesn't think the New Hampshire vote for Lodge involved an endorsement of Viet Nam policies.

"I think this was very much an endorsement of Ambassador Lodge, however," he said. "He made a very fine impression on the nation when he was at the United Nations and I think a lot of people feel he would therefore be a very capable president."

Scranton was asked if he thinks disclosures of the outside activities of Baker, resigned secretary of the senate majority will figure in this year's campaign.

"I think it will play a more important role than I first thought, if the senate continues handling it the way it has," he said. "Frankly, I thought it would be handled so that, for example, the White House generally wouldn't be very much involved, but that they would get more deeply into some of the questions that have arisen in the case. The fact that they've been unwilling to do this put more of a light on it than might have been the case if they'd done a more thorough job and then closed up shop."

Laos Right Wing Coup Lasts Only 36 Hours

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. diplomatic sources said Sunday a right wing military coup in neighboring Laos collapsed a day after the overthrow of the coalition regime of neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phoum.

"The situation (in Laos) is back to where it was 36 hours ago," said an American diplomat who had been in contact with the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane.

It was generally believed in Saigon diplomatic circles that U.S. Ambassador to Laos Leonard Unger, probably had applied pressure on the coup leaders.

In Washington the State Department had no comment.

A group of army officers led by Gen. Kouprasith Abhay overthrew Souvanna's coalition government in a pre-dawn coup Sunday.

Kouprasith, described as a tough anti-communist professional soldier, set up a military executive committee of 15 to rule the country, with himself as committee president.

The American source in Saigon said reports from Laos were still fragmentary and the picture somewhat confused, but diplomatic dispatches from Vientiane reported Souvanna had been released from house arrest and leaders of the coup had apologized for their attempt to overthrow the government.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk stated in Saigon Sunday the United States disapproved of the coup and was concerned it might upset the Geneva accord of 1962 setting up a coalition government for Laos.

Prince Souvanna, leader of the Laxian pro-communist Pathet Lao, meanwhile had called on neutralist Gen. Kong Le to "cooperate resolutely" with him in overthrowing the regime set up by Kouprasith, according to a Peking broadcast.

Souvanna, half brother of the Pathet Lao's Souphanouvong, was reported placed under house arrest by Kouprasith along with at least two other neutralist leaders.

Ambassador Unger lost no time in confronting Kouprasith with a declaration that the United States "is categorically opposed" to any seizure of power. Unger urged immediate release of all neutralists "as a first step toward restoring the situation back to normal."

Unger raced back to Vientiane after a conference with Rusk in Saigon.

"I have made the U.S. position clear to them," Unger said after a half-hour meeting with Kouprasith.

Britain and France also made known their opposition to the coup.

Kouprasith, in a brief speech outside the defense ministry, said the military seized power because Souvanna's 22-months old coalition government had failed to re-establish peace and harmony in Laos.

Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, rightist member of Souvanna's coalition, was not mentioned among the leaders of the coup.

The rebels broadcast a statement attributed to Souvanna that he had resigned in the wake of the failure of his talks among neutralist, rightwing and pro-communist leaders.

High, High Hitch-Hiker Begs Help

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—"Mister, please help me."

The urgent plea of 11-year-old Danny Nowell, dangling helplessly at the very end of a frail rope 30 feet below a huge balloon, floated up in startling clarity to the pilot in the gondola.

Looking down, William R. Berry was horrified to see a small boy floating below. Only the thin rope wrapped around his hand prevented the boy from falling 3,000 feet into rugged hills north across the Golden Gate from San Francisco.

In his hospital bed where he was recuperating Sunday, young Danny said he never will forget the balloonist's reassuring words:

"Hold on. It's all right. We'll get you down."

Cutting off the propane burners that were sending hot gas into the 70-foot tall balloon, Berry caressed it to descend. The big buoy drifted two miles into a valley near Mt. Tamalpais and settled in a tree.

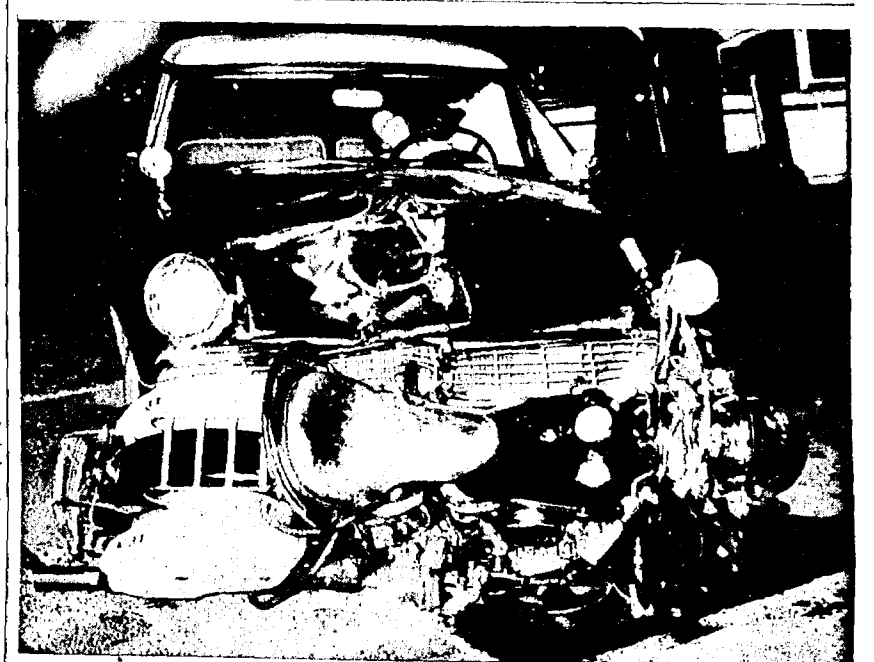

The rope around Danny's left hand snapped, apparently when it struck the tree and Danny tumbled through the branches to the ground.

Danny's adventure Saturday began when he and other boys volunteered to hang onto restraining ropes while pilot Berry was preparing to ascend.

No one realized that Danny, to make sure he pulled his weight, had wrapped the rope around his wrist.

When Berry signaled to cast off, all lines except Danny's were released. Danny shot skyward with the balloon.

Startled spectators screamed but went unheard in the gondola. Until the balloon was 3,000 feet up and Berry heard the boy's desperate appeal, he had no idea what had happened.

Quieter Castro Asks Concessions

NEW YORK (AP)—Fidel Castro said in an interview broadcast Sunday night he believes both the United States and Cuba should make concessions toward restoring normal relations.

Castro said he once had felt that the late President John F. Kennedy "was in the way of persuading himself of his mistakes about Cuba," and that some sort of change in U. S. policy had been in the making.

He indicated Cuba is watching and waiting with regard to President Johnson's administration.

Castro's interview with Lisa Howard of the American Broadcasting Co. was recorded in Havana on Feb. 12 and appeared as part of a documentary.

Castro said the Cubans "do not know Johnson's thinking and are observing what he is going to do about Cuba."

"You ask me what we are willing to concede," he added, "I think some concessions ought to be made by both parties, for the United States and for Cuba. I think a peace policy means mutual concessions, dignity."

Castro did not elaborate on what concessions he thought should be made by either side.

The Cuban leader declined to be pinned down on his position in the world Communist argument produced by the Chinese-Soviet split. He said he thought the problem sooner or later would be solved and "of course, have to give my opinion about this is not the place where I that problem."

3 Hurt In Crash In Stroudsburg

STROUDSBURG — Two motorcycle riders remained in the General Hospital of Monroe County last night as a result of tangling with an automobile on N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, Saturday at 7:32 p.m.

Stroudsburg police identified the injured as Richard Felker, 27, of Stroudsburg Star Route, and Grant Booth, 24, of 224 S. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

The hospital listed Felker in good condition with lacerations of the left leg and Booth as satisfactory with a compound fracture of the left leg.

Police said Joan Marie Keiper, 30, of 51 Caville St., Stroudsburg, was attempting to turn her car into the parking lot of a restaurant when the accident occurred. The motorcycle, driven by Felker, was going south.

Mrs. Keiper was also treated at the hospital for leg and stomach pains. She was released Sunday.

Both men on the motorcycle were thrown off. Booth flew over the Keiper car and landed 20 feet away. Felker was thrown to one side.

Russian Troops To Leave Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—Johnston administration officials expect the last large group of Soviet troops in Cuba to be withdrawn within the next two or three weeks. The number due to leave is authoritatively estimated at about 3,600 officers and men—perhaps 600 to 800.

The Soviet forces have been whittled down slowly over 15 months from an estimated top strength of 22,000 at the time of the nuclear missile crisis in October 1962.

While cutting back their own forces the Russians have steadily built up Prime Minister Fidel Castro's military power. One of the final acts of the Soviet troop commands in Cuba, U.S. officials understand, will be to turn over to Castro's forces the operation of 24 anti-aircraft missile bases.

The surface-to-air missiles are capable of destroying even the high-altitude U. S. U2 reconnaissance jets which regularly fly over Cuba to keep check on military installations.

In taking them over, Castro would appear to gain the power to shoot down a U2 and thus set off a new crisis with the United States—something the Russians have been avoiding.

Washington officials doubt, however, that Soviet Premier Khrushchev will give the Cubans blanket check control of the weapons, since Soviet policy presently favors easing East-West tensions.

Making sure the weapons are not used by the Cubans contrary to Soviet purposes may be one of the tasks of the military mission remaining in Cuba.

President Johnson discussed the Cuban situation along with other Moscow-Washington problems in a meeting at the White House on Friday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

State News Roundup

Half-Million Out For Trout

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Near perfect water and weather conditions brought out an estimated one-half million anglers for the opening of the trout fishing season Saturday.

Albert M. Day, executive director of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, said the conditions were excellent in all counties of the state except Wyoming County where some rain fell early in the day.

Day said the turnout included as many as 250,000 women and children.

The fishing was reported heaviest in the northeast region of the state where many anglers caught their limit of eight trout by seven or eight a.m.

Mistreatment Of Retarded Kids?

HONESDALE, Pa. (UPI) — A hearing will be held in the Wayne County Courthouse this Wednesday into charges of mistreatment at the Edward Reilly Institution for Retarded Children at nearby Hawley.

The hearing stems from allegations by former employees of the institution.

A. Emerson Howell, an attorney, obtained an injunction from county judge James Rutherford enjoining the commonwealth from removing the children from the home pending the hearing.

Compensation For Retired

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pennsylvania employers will be charged for compensation benefits paid to workers forced to retire because of age, according to a decision reached by the State Superior Court.

The decision, which concerned a case involving the Atlantic Refining Co., was disclosed Saturday. It was reached earlier in the week in Pittsburgh.

The court denied relief to Atlantic from charges resulting from the retirement of 355 employees at age 65 since 1958.

In effect, the decision requires employers to make payments to their unemployment compensation fund account when a pensioner, under a mandatory retirement policy, decides to collect unemployment for a year as the law provides.

VFW Raps Aid For Viet Cong

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Pennsylvania commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars called on U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy recently to investigate the activities of an American student committee raising funds to aid the Viet Cong.

George E. Hartman of East McKeesport urged federal authorities "to stop the solicitation of funds by this committee and prevent its funds from being sent to the Communists."

He read the text of a telegram he said he had sent to Kennedy during a dinner meeting of the VFW Anthracite Counties Council.

Goldstein Urges Windfall Tax

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A state representative from Pittsburgh says he is going to propose legislation to put a state "windfall" tax on the sale of tax-exempt real estate sold by a non-profit organization to a profit organization.

State Rep. Maurice H. Goldstein, a Republican, said Saturday he will make the proposal when the legislature returns next month.

In describing the proposal Goldstein offered as an example a cemetery selling part of its land to a real estate firm.

Won't Play For Bias Audiences

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Symphony Society has resolved that the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will not perform before segregated audiences.

The society's board of directors instructed the orchestra manager in the resolution adopted Saturday to decline engagements in all cases where he finds evidence of discrimination.

Baker Probe Tarnishes Johnson

(Louis Harris, nationally famous pollster, this week tries to find out the impact of the Bobby Baker probe.)

In the view of most Americans, the Bobby Baker case has cast a shadow of doubt over President Lyndon Johnson's ability to handle corruption in Washington.

But in itself, at this reading, it is unlikely that the Baker episode will prove to be a decisive factor in the polls next November. In fact, the prestige of the Senate appears to have suffered more than that of the President as a result of the investigation of the business dealings of the former Senate aide.

As the revelations of Baker's financial activities unfolded, public confidence in Mr. Johnson's ability to keep corruption out of government went down rather precipitously. He still holds a bare majority, however, among a carefully drawn cross-section of the American people asked to rate him positively or negatively on this aspect of his job.

The Bobby Baker case has been widely followed by nearly nine out of every 10 voters. Despite the public attention, the case has received the vast majority of Americans do not feel that the case had drastically altered their view of either the President or the Senate.

When questioned directly on the subject, better than seven out of 10 people said the Bobby Baker investigation had not changed their opinion of Lyndon Johnson.

Where the Baker case made a difference in these circumstances, among one in six voters, Mr. Johnson has been hurt by it. But most people are not prepared to condemn the President over it alone.

A somewhat larger number of people are openly critical of the Senate over the Baker episode.

Rather than shocking the public about the Senate, the Baker episode has confirmed rather long-standing cynicism about the nation's top legislators. # Camelback Plans $400,000 Expansion

By JIM OTTAWAY Jr.,
Daily Record Editor

TANNERSVILLE — Directors of Camelback Ski Corp. announced Saturday a two-year $400,000 expansion program for the ski facility at Big Pocono Mountain which surprised them with a profit in its first winter of operation.

James Moore, president, said expansion plans include a second chair lift, two smaller lifts, new trails, a new beginners area, doubling the size of the base lodge, an enlarged parking area and more snow-making machinery.

The $750,000 ski area will also be developed as a summer tourist attraction, with chair lift rides beginning May 16, a chip and putt golf course, picnic pavilion and children's playground planned, and the future possibility of a glass-enclosed, summer - winter swimming pool in front of the ski lodge.

Moore, a Philadelphia tax lawyer with the firm of Pepper, Hamilton and Scheetz, said the 44,000 skiers who came to the new Pocono Mountain ski area last winter "hopelessly overstrained" its starting capacity.

He announced plans for skiing at night on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, a new nursery service, and expansion of the Walter Foeger Natur Technik ski school next year.

First Year Profit

Foeger, Austrian ski expert who is managing director of Camelback and Jay Peak in Vermont, said Camelback was the first of 70 ski areas in the East to make a profit in the first year.

He outlined a new area for ski club and special races, with a 40-foot ski jump and slalom courses. He said his ski school, which gave 11,000 lessons last winter, would expand from seven to 12 instructors.

Summer Attraction

Fred Frankel of Fred Frankel Associates in Philadelphia, a summer recreation facility expert and Camelback director, described plans for development of summer tourist facilities at the ski area.

They include a chip and putt golf course on the beginners slope near the base lodge, a 60 by 100-foot picnic pavilion with barbecue stands for use in summer and winter for skiers and tourists, a "park your baby service" near the base lodge with playground equipment outdoors and a building for a winter nursery service.

Frankel also described plans for volley balls, shuffleboard and possibly other sports.

Directors Meeting

Camelback Ski Corp. officers and directors met Saturday and Sunday to decide the construction schedule and what lifts, trails and building will be done this summer for next ski season.

Frankel explained that the corporation was not satisfied with use of the facilities for only the 100-day ski season. He said Camelback could help itself and the Pocono Mountain resort community by expanding into a summer recreation area.

ARA Loans

Charles R. Bensinger of Stroudsburg, vice president of Camelback, said the corporation is seeking a second loan from the federal Area Redevelopment Agency.

Camelback has applied for a $230,000 ARA loan for the $400,000 expansion program.

The ARA made a $316,500 loan, with local participation by banks, individuals and Pocono Mountain Industries, Inc., toward approximately $750,000 invested already in Camelback.

Ski Resort Lunch

The plans were described to the 28-member Pocono Ski Resort Assn. by Foeger, Moore, Frankel and Bensinger after a luncheon at the Camelback base lodge.

Sandy McIlvaine, New York architect who specializes in ski resort building, showed plans for expansion of the base lodge. It will double the capacity of the cafeteria, ski rental and other facilities by addition to the east of a sun deck area connecting to another section similar to the present lodge. Moore called this "a giant step we will take this summer."

Bigger and Better

Leonard Smiley of High president of the Pocono Ski Mount Lodge in Henryville, Resort Assn., said after the luncheon he could see "bigger and better things for the entire community" in the Camelback expansion plans.

He said Camelback had definitely helped business in the winter resorts and that "practically everybody" is expanding facilities to meet the new demand.

Smiley said directors of the ski resort association planned to meet regularly with Camelback directors to coordinate planning for future expansion.

Pocono Manor Helped

John Crandall, general manager of Pocono Manor Inn, said business to his resort during the week as well as on weekends.

He said Pocono Manor plans to expand its own skiing facilities.

Stroudsburg Granite Co.

Truman Burnett, Owner
Main St. at Dreher Ave. 421-5501

Emil Wagner, manager of Mount Alty Lodge near Mt. Pocono, called Camelback "one of the most spectacular developments in the Poconos since the honeymoon business was invented. It is a lucky marriage of skiing and the hotel business."

3 Ski Areas

Foeger described his novel plan for a separation of beginner, intermediate and expert skiers with the three main lifts.

The new chair lift, about 3,000 feet long, to the top of the mountain will be parallel and to the left of the present chair lift. It will be for beginners and will lead to a large new system of trails.

The present 2,900-foot chairlift will serve advanced and expert skiers, and the present 1,950-foot T-Bar will serve intermediate skiers.

Beginners will be able to ski by themselves on the present learners slope with a J-Bar and in the new beginners slope to be built to the left (east) of the base ski lodge and parking lot.

Moore said night skiing would begin next December on the T-Bar Interstate trail. If Wednesday night skiing is successful, other midweek nights may be scheduled for people in the Poconos and 50-mile area around.

Moore said the present three lifts have a "comfortable capacity" of 1,800 skiers per hour. He described "comfortable capacity" as waiting for a ride no more than 12 minutes.

The proposed three new lifts would raise that capacity to 3,200 skiers per hour on six lifts.

Parking space at the bottom of the mountain will be enlarged from 1,000 to 1,600 cars and snow making - capacity will be improved by an addition of 70 per cent to air compressor power and laying of new pipe lines to all trails.

Poor Winter Weather

Moore reported that Camelback's initial success had been achieved during poor winter weather.

The estimated 65 inches of natural snow was 20 inches more than fell. A 10-day thaw in January with heavy rains and another two-week thaw in March cut back skiing days considerably.

Military Economy

It seems that President Johnson's economy kick is catching on, even in the Congress.

The House Appropriations Committee voted Friday for $46,785,867,000 in new defense funds for fiscal 1965, cutting $712 million from administration requests.

Such economizing, particularly in a defense budget, is almost unheard of in Congress. Five times in the past ten years, the Congress has increased the size of the defense budget.

On several occasions, the Congress insisted on appropriating funds which the Defense Department insisted it did not need.

In shamefully short debates on defense appropriations, the Congress has approved just about anything the military establishment could convince it was needed to protect the nation and defend the free world from Communism.

The defense budget became one of the sacred cows of national life, beyond debate, criticism or reduction in any essential part.

Now a new wind is blowing in Washington. Two major factors are combining to put an end to ever increasing military budgets.

First, military planners in the Pentagon now admit that we are armed to the teeth, are superior in might to the Communist, and really don't need too many more missiles, bombers, ships or men.

Explaining why he was recommending a decrease of $1.1 billion to $51.2 billion in military expenditures of the Defense Department, President Johnson said:

"Further substantial numerical increases in our strategic forces above those already planned would soon be of diminishing value."

Secondly, President Johnson has determined that federal spending, and military spending most of all, shall not continue to climb. He cut the proposed administration budget from $98.8 in 1964 to $97.9 in fiscal 1965 and started turning off government office lights at night.

Now even Congress seems to be getting in the new economy mood. We will see how real the new feeling is Tuesday, when the House of Representatives is scheduled to take up the $46.8 defense spending bill.

Investigating Baker

Sen John J. Williams, Delaware Republican who got the Bobby Baker case out of Senate offices and onto Page One, suggested that the Justice Department should now move into the investigation of Baker's wheeling and dealing and influence peddling under former Senator and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

He said the Rules Committee of the Senate, which has been investigating Bobby Baker and his dealings, had asked the Justice Department to stay out of the case until the committee is finished.

Now Senator Williams says, "I do think that the time has come when the Department of Justice could and should move in. Whether it will or not, events of the days or weeks ahead will reveal."

It is a politically explosive suggestion because Bobby Kennedy heads the Justice Department.

He is reported less than cordial to the Johnson wing of the Democratic party.

Grave frictions with the President are predicted if Bobby Kennedy continues to be one of the leading contenders for the vice presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket with President Johnson in next fall's election.

Johnson, who followed John F. Kennedy to the White House, is obviously not anxious to share it with the brother of the assassinated President.

The result of a serious investigation of illegal deals by Bobby Baker, rather than just the shabby or questionable deals, might lead to further embarrassment for President Johnson, who brought Baker up in the political world of Washington and made him secretary to the Democratic majority in the Senate.

Senator Williams is obviously attempting to increase the friction between Bobby Kennedy and President Johnson by suggesting that the Justice Department pick up where the Senate Rules Committee quits.

But it would be much more proper for the Justice Department to investigate Bobby Baker, seek an indictment and prosecute him in court, if it can, than for the Senate Rules Committee to proceed in its extra-legal investigation, in which the only thing between a suspect and conviction by the committee is the fifth amendment.

"Is That Man Bothering You, Ma'am?"

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — An enterprising upstate lawmaker seeking re-election was back on Capitol Hill the other day even though the Legislature is in recess for the month.

"This in itself isn't particularly unusual; lawmakers quite frequently turn up on Capitol Hill in session, running errands for local constituents, attending an interim committee session, or perhaps returning just to make sure the mound is still here."

In any event, the lawmaker in question was sporting a brand new automobile. We suggested as sort of an afterthought that with an election campaign under way, a new car might raise some eyebrows among his voting brethren — negatively, that is.

He readily agreed, offering this comment: "The bus I had for seven years was rusting through; it had more than one hundred thousand miles on it. The old Bentley was just getting to the point where I had to do something — so I bought this new Jitney."

"One of the party leaders at home saw the new bus too; stopped me on the street and cluck-clucked, like you, that this was no time to brandish a new car, but what was I to do?"

We suggested in light of that he buy an old ramshackle but modestly worthy piece of equipment for a few bucks and use that during the campaign.

He had an answer for that:

"Yeah? A couple of years ago one of my former legislative colleagues — I must use 'former' because he lost out — did that and good gosh the opposition campaigned against him for sporting two cars!"

(For some reason holders of public office, whether they be a legislator or a teacher or you name it, just aren't supposed to have the things the average person normally enjoys; the mode of living is expected to be a peg or two lower.)

As one nettled member of the Senate put it:

"Why, it's reached the point where I'm almost ashamed to be a two-suit man — and that's skating on pretty thin ice insofar as the (beloved) wife is concerned!"

All of which brings up an interesting and perhaps intriguing point: what's the story on this car thing insofar as the Number One personage in Pennsylvania is concerned?

The Scranion vehicular stable consists of three cars — a Chevy station wagon, a Chevy Corvair (both about circa 1961) and a 1962 Buick (which Mrs. Scranion lingers around in for the most part) bought during and for the 1962 gubernatorial campaign.

No big Cadillac, Lincoln, Imperial or Bentley? No, the Governor and his wife never got out of the Chevy category until the advent of the Buick (bigger, heavier car for campaign pounding) in 1962.

All this is somewhat of a paradox in a sense for the Governor's mother when she was one of the ruling matriarchs of the old GOParty in Pennsylvania was a literally trade-marked by her big black Cadillac limousine (which she drove herself) as she chafed up about 50,000 miles a year banging around the State!

What about the Governor's "official" state car? Until a few weeks ago he was still using the Oldsmobile '58" he inherited over a year ago from the preceding Lawrence Administration. What does he have now — a new big black official Cadillac?

Nope — it's still an Oldsmobile, but alas, it's a medium range Olds '58", down a peg from the former 100,000-mile-plus '58" he inherited.

Interesting sidelight: Cabinet members (department heads) chafing at the bit all this time trying to get their hands on new Cadillacs, Lincolns, etc., had to hold off until they saw what "the boss" finally acquired — of course they couldn't sport a finer car! Now none of them are going above an Olds '58"!

What about official functions — hauling visiting dignitaries around, etc.? There's no big, long black car anymore — they get the Governor's Olds '58" treatment (or they can ride a bus).

(Maybe the campaign law-maker should buy back his old Jitney after all and push it around his campaign trail!)

Dedicated Fireman

We've always held a warm spot in our hearts for volunteer firemen — the men who get little recognition for hazardous duties in communities.

When "Smoky Stover" answers numerous calls for a year he deserves a pat on the back from his neighbors. But when a man serves a fire company since 1909 he warrants the highest honors that can be bestowed on a fire-fighter.

We suppose there are more than a few in this category. But the one that comes to mind at the moment is John Allison Everitt, the fellow who was picked as mascot of Stroudsburg's Chemical Fire Co. in 1909 and has been serving with honor since.

Al, the brother who doesn't look like Sam or Ben, stepped down recently as captain of Chemical after 28 years at the helm of the company. But he didn't step out this guy who has seen some of the biggest fires in borough history. He will continue to serve his company and community as faithful as in the past half century.

In the minutes of the March 6, 1919 session of Chemical, it is noted:

On the motion of H.S. Heller and C. L. Wallace, John Allison Everitt, a member of proxy of the company since its organization as mascot first, junior later, he elected a member of the company by resolution. Adopted unanimously.

Everitt has had a fabulous career in Chemical. He was elected a member of the House Committee in March 1931 and served to March 1934. That same year he was elected assistant foreman, a post now called lieutenant. March 4, 1936, Al was made captain and was re-elected continuously for 28 years. This all adds up to 30 years as a line officer in Chemical.

Aside from his duties, Everitt found time to serve 28 straight years as secretary of the Four-County Firemen's Association.

Al plans to keep his hand in the firemen affairs and also be ready for duty whenever the whistle blows.

There is little else you can add to this career of dedicated service to his fellow man.

Kennedy Battle

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — A three-way power struggle is raging within the White House staff over personnel appointments and domestic policy recommendations.

This politically explosive dispute, which only President Johnson can decide, is coming to a head over the proposed appointment of Wilson D. McCarthy, congressional relations officer of the Peace Corps, to the White House staff.

The 34-year-old McCarthy, known as a "Bobby Kennedy man" within administration circles, is being strongly pushed by the White House post by presidential aides Bill Moyers, former deputy director of the Peace Corps, and J. J. Valenti, special consultant to the President.

These two presidential advisers are stressing that McCarthy is needed in the White House to improve the administration's liaison with Congress to pass the controversial medicare and anti-poverty programs.

A close friend of Moyers when both worked in the Peace Corps, McCarthy is being urged by the former as the one person who could serve as a communication link between President Johnson and Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

Opposing McCarthy's selection are veteran Johnson aides Walter Jenkins, special presidential assistant, and Clifton Carter, the White House's top political adviser.

They frankly argue that McCarthy, a pre-convention supporter of the late President Kennedy, is a "Kennedy rather than a Johnson man" and that his political loyalties in any showdown with Attorney General Robert Kennedy would not be to the President, but to Kennedy.

Until the Attorney General spells out more clearly his future political intentions, neither Carter nor Jenkins feels the President should strengthen the Kennedy influence within the inner White House circle by adding McCarthy to the staff.

The Third Force — The third group of White House aides, known as the "Kennedy holdovers" and headed by special presidential assistant Kenneth O'Donnell, is supporting McCarthy's appointment, but staying in the background in the struggle between the two Johnson groups.

The "Kennedy holdovers" who supported the late President in his 1960 bid for the Democratic nomination, include Lawrence O'Brien, special legislative assistant to the President; Leo Feldman, special counsel; Lee C. White, deputy special counsel; and George Bundy, special assistant on security affairs.

This group, which welcomes McCarthy as one of their own, is encouraging his appointment by playing up his work with Congress while in the Peace Corps and his close association with Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver, Jr., now co-ordinator of the President's anti-poverty program.

In their backstage discussions, the "Kennedy holdovers" are privately telling supporters in Congress that McCarthy's selection will strengthen their hand in influencing Johnson to increase his $300 million request for funds to launch the anti-poverty program.

The two Johnson groups, although sharply split over McCarthy, are firmly united in limiting this new domestic venture to "pilot projects" until a determination can be made as to which approach should be used in allocating federal funds.

White House insiders say the President is delaying his decision until he can personally determine whether Attorney General Kennedy has any unannounced political plans for 1964.

The Whitewash — A major effort is being made by a group of State Department and Central Intelligence Agency authorities to whitewash, cover up and ridicule the disclosures made by Polish defector Colonel Michael Goleniewski, since they involve treason in both agencies.

It is a well-organized campaign, with CIA officials making personal contact with members of Congress and newsmen, and telling them Goleniewski is under heavy nervous tension.

Representative Michael Feighan, D-O., one of the few members of Congress who have talked to Goleniewski, reports that the Polish defector is in good health and mind, although worried that the Russians may try to kill him.

Deafness in the elderly presents special problems, complicated by psychological factors. Elderly persons who need them should be encouraged to wear hearing aids so that they can take an active part in family and community life.

The inability to hear frequently makes the older person withdraw from social groups. A hearing aid can give sufficient "boost" to open again the horizons of sound to an unnecessarily limited world.

Recently, surveys have shown that industrial noises have produced damaging effects on the human ear. Constant exposure over long periods of time to noise of high intensity in factories can be destructive to the delicate hearing mechanism.

Can Be Lessened Noise sufficient to produce deafness can be reduced to harmless levels in industry if proper precautions are taken.

There are now available methods by which the intensity of sound and the time of exposure can be measured. This is called "noise-exposure-index."

Employers and employees should combine their efforts so as to minimize this bombardment by noise and protect the hearing from permanent loss.

Speaking Of Your Health:

There's Help For The Deaf

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

When will patients come to the happy realization that there is no shame in wearing a hearing aid?

Thousands of hard of hearing persons are denying themselves the enriched, productive lives they are entitled to, either because they are unwilling to admit that their hearing is inadequate, or because of the false belief that wearing a hearing aid will make them less acceptable members of a social or business group.

As a matter of fact, deafened persons who decide to wear a hearing aid are always delighted with the marked improvement in their relationships with family, friends and business associates. Conversation is easy and natural. The familiar tense strain to hear and to be heard is replaced by a wonderful climate for communication.

Pay Little Attention The deaf person soon finds that other people pay little or no attention to the hearing aid itself. Amplification of sound with hearing aids has brought "sound" happiness to many thousands of people.

Deafness exists in one form or another, in 15,000,000 people in the United States alone. It is estimated that an additional 45,000,000 people, those who live in immediate contact with the deaf, are affected in some way by this handicap.

Numerous Causes There are numerous causes for deafness. Some are preventable. Some are congenital or hereditary; these include birth defects and a condition of progressive deafness called otosclerosis.

Ingenious and brilliant operations have, in recent years, restored serviceable hearing to thousands of deaf patients. The febrile operation and its successor, the stapes technique, have been extremely successful in great numbers of carefully selected cases. It is important to remember, however, that not all types of deafness are candidates for these surgical procedures.

Any hearing difficulty, no matter how slight, should be investigated by the physician so that no time will be wasted in clearing up possible infections or in making whatever recommendations are necessary.

Special Problems Deafness in the elderly presents special problems, complicated by psychological factors. Elderly persons who need them should be encouraged to wear hearing aids so that they can take an active part in family and community life.

The inability to hear frequently makes the older person withdraw from social groups. A hearing aid can give sufficient "boost" to open again the horizons of sound to an unnecessarily limited world.

Recently, surveys have shown that industrial noises have produced damaging effects on the human ear. Constant exposure over long periods of time to noise of high intensity in factories can be destructive to the delicate hearing mechanism.

Can Be Lessened Noise sufficient to produce deafness can be reduced to harmless levels in industry if proper precautions are taken.

Stories Behind Words

by

William S. Penfield

Bunk

The word "bunk," meaning nonsense, originated in a speech in the U.S. Congress. Rep. Felix Walker served in the House of Representatives from 1817 to 1823, representing a district in North Carolina that included Buncombe County. Once, during a House session, he launched into a speech that had nothing to do with the matter at hand. And, despite the protests of his colleagues, he spoke at great length.

Later he explained that he was "speaking for Buncombe." Buncombe pronounced bunk-bunk and acquired the meaning of speechmaking to please constituents. Later it came to mean anything irrelevant or nonsensical.

Toynbee Foresees East-West Marriage

By MILTON MARMOR
LONDON (AP) — Arnold J. Toynbee, the distinguished historian-philosopher, reached his 75th birthday convinced that the future will bring East and West together in a new world society. He said that the mixture of the two civilizations will start mainly on a Western basis. The eminent English scholar brings an Olympian approach to the study of mankind. He sees history falling into civilization patterns and views them in the whole context of their life spans. In an interview with the Associated Press as he approached his birthday he foresaw a détente between the Soviet Union and the United States. The interview was in his study at the Royal Institute of International Affairs where he has been director for 30 years. Soon after, he left for Africa with his wife. He was in Benghazi at the University of Libya on his birthday. His wife became 70 while they were in Ethiopia. They also visited Nigeria, Sudan and the United Arab Republic. "America is becoming a bit of a free enterprise country. I think there will be a compromise between Western civilization and the others. "There will be mixture, a common world civilization that will start by being on a Western basis. It will be altered as different people come into it. "I think that what is most likely to happen is that the West will provide the framework for the new world society which will be mainly Western to start, but as the Chinese become more important—and the Africans to some degree—they'll put their civilizations into this. "Historian's Historian Toynbee's monumental "A Study of History" made a great impression on the scholarly world. He began the 12-volume study in 1927 and finished it in 1961—all written in longhand. The study aroused admiration in many quarters and some antagonism from historians with a different approach. An abridgement of his first six volumes became a best seller in 1947 in the United States. Toynbee, formerly a professor at the University of London, attacks history from the viewpoint of the patterns that emerge with the rise and fall of civilizations. He looks at their birth, growth and decay. His view is that the decay usually results from some wrong response to a challenge that confronts the civilization. In the interview Toynbee was emphatic on the issue of Communist China—an issue that is a sore spot with United States foreign policy makers. "China will overshadow the whole relations of the world," he said. "By the year 2000 she will be pretty well over half the population of the world. The Chinese are just, able, capable and a bit more hard-working than the rest of us. "We shall all be thinking about China. It will draw us together. "By 'us,' he said, he meant most people outside China, including the Soviet Union. "Generally, in the past China has expanded peacefully and not by military force. Certainly, China will be the greatest single power in the world by the year 2000." The future, he thinks, will see less of a struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union. "I think we and the Russians will become more and more concerned about China—and this will bring us together," he added. "But I don't think the Chinese will try and conquer the world. On the whole they are moderate and sensible and not bloody minded." At 75, Toynbee is a pleasant, good-natured man with a gentle sense of humor. He gives this counsel to the human race. "Be patient. Don't liquidate the human race. Put up with your troubles, restrain yourselves. Think above all that if you don't liquidate the world now there are 2,000 million years that are still to go. Seventy-seven million generations are waiting to be born; that's a big responsibility." Advice To U. S. He also gives this advice to the United States: "I'd say it's going to be very hard not to recognize the existence of China when she is half the world. I would also say: try not to be fanatical. Dulles (John Foster Dulles, late U.S. secretary of state) put a kind of religion into America's relations with Russia. Don't feel that your opponent must be the devil. Don't think you are always on the side of the angels. I think it's the Puritan spirit in America that makes Americans so fanatical. The English exported their Puritans to America." Nevertheless, Toynbee said, he likes Americans because they are "very warm hearted and sincere. When you go there you have a feeling of friendship and a feeling that they mean it. Then there is a kind of frankness and directness about American life that I like very much. I probably like it because they give you a chance. If I were a Negro I might feel differently." Toynbee has been a frequent visitor to the United States. He has lectured at many colleges and universities, and has seen more of the country than many of its inhabitants. His next visit will be in September when he goes to the University of Denver for a stay of about three months. In December he will lecture at New Mexico State University. After that he will spend several months at New College in Sarasota, Fla. Toynbee was asked what men of the 20th century will have a place in history. "Gandhi, first of all," he answered. "In the past changes generally meant violence. And in the atomic age we can't have violence if we are to survive. Gandhi invented a way to make big changes without violence. He didn't know he was working in the atomic age, but he was. We also must consider his spiritual greatness. He taught his followers to fight the British without hating them. "Then, Einstein, of course. Einstein didn't know he was a great man. Franklin Roosevelt—Churchill—those names come to my mind first of all. "I hope Khrushchev will be the man in history who led Russia off the Stalin line. If he succeeds, he will live as a benefactor. We'd better treasure him, I think."

Cocky Khrushchev Unafraid Of Problems Facing Him

By PRESTON GROVER
MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev reached his 70th birthday last week still the dominant figure of the Soviet Union. Problems at home and abroad besiege him but he acts as if hardly a cloud troubles him in the approaching winter of his life. Three weeks before his birthday, he gaily boarded a train, his wife Nina beside him, to join in an anniversary celebration of a wartime victory in Budapest and to deal with the conflict with Communist China for world party leadership.

The China problem was blown to fever heat with the publication of a reply drafted by Khrushchev's ideological spokesman, Mikhail Suslov. This had been held up six weeks while party leaders decided whether to publish it. Fading Conflict It was largely a defensive declaration but proposed, clearly over much opposition in the Communist camp, a showdown meeting of Communist parties of the world. This conflict with China carries far more potential dynamite, both for Russia and the world Communist movement, than the West faces in the peculiar conflict between the United States and De Gaulle's France. Khrushchev has other troubles, such as agriculture, the nagging problem of Soviet treatment of Jews and some unhappy Armenians, his own writers and painters, plus a labor slowdown. These discolor the picture he would like to paint for the world about the good life under communism. There are more whisperings of discontent than there were even a year ago. In the past year, the Chinese crisis has grown worse, and the near-failure of the wheat crop turned a glaring spotlight on the agricultural program he has managed almost on a personal basis for 11 years.

But Of Jokes Not in a number of years have more disagreeable personal jokes circulated about him—by Russians, not by foreigners. Despite the criticism of his agricultural policies, Khrushchev can always say—and he does say it—that production is ahead of 10 years ago. But it is not as far ahead as it ought to be, Khrushchev's bright forecasts have bounced back. It is almost impossible to buy flour in Moscow, a favored city. While Khrushchev is older than most of his associates, he is still by far the most dynamic governmental figure in the Soviet Union, and perhaps in the world. He has been in power, or at the side of power, longer than any living leader of a top-level nation. His rival for Communist influence, Mao Tse-tung, has shaken off most of his governmental duties. Since 1957, Khrushchev has been pretty much the undisputed boss in the Soviet Union, both government and party.

Suez Ghosts Haunt British

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
LONDON (AP)—The ghosts of Suez have risen again to haunt Britain's thin line across the Middle East. Three weeks ago British planes shattered a mud-walled fort in the Arabian Desert, retaliating against Yemeni forces. As a result Arabians assigned Britain in the U.N. Security Council on charges of launching "a barbaric attack" and killing civilians. They demanded that Britain quit its Aden base. President Makarios last week-end acted to cancel the Cypriot, Turkish and Greek alliance. The move chilled London with the fear that he eventually will scrap a treaty which lets British troops and II-bombers base on the island. The Kingdom of Libya will ask Britain on April 20 formally to withdraw troop and air bases from the country. This would bar the Middle East for military planes bound for Asia. The Royal Air Force might have to fly around most of Africa to reach its Persian Gulf and Southeast Asian outposts. The upshot if all goes sour—and London recognizes it might—would be Britain's virtual elimination from the Middle East as an effective military power. The United States and the Soviet Union would be left as the supreme foreign influences in the region—Americans through the 8th Fleet, Soviets indirectly through the United Arab Republic, Yemen and other Arab states. What lies behind the flash flood of discontent with a Britain that has shed power in the Indian subcontinent, wound up 90st bitter empire in Africa and begun hauling the flag down in Southeast Asia. Problems affecting Britain's presence in the area are answered partly in three centuries of history, partly in the passions of contemporary politics. As the British see recent developments, the key man helping to mastermind or exploit each situation is Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Deposed Rulers Dream Of Return

By FRED GOLDEN
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — When Brazil's ousted President Joao Goulart flew to neighboring Uruguay he joined one of the world's most unusual clubs. It elects no officers and never meets. Although fashionably exclusive, most of its members would rather not belong. It is made up of national leaders tumbled unwillingly from power and cast into exile. The roster includes kings, presidents, prime ministers and even an emperor. What do these men do after the acclaim dies down? Do they dream of the day when their nations will recall them? Juan Domingo Peron still cherishes the dream, even though he has been a political refugee since Argentina turned its back on his dictatorship nine years ago. A resident of Spain, Peron, 68, says, "I am very happy here, but I will never give up hope of returning some day to Argentina." Peron remains undisturbed by Argentina's recent effort to extradite him on criminal charges, confident that Spain will reject the request. The man driven out of Cuba by Fidel Castro lives in neighboring Portugal in exclusive Estoril, home of many royal and political exiles. Cuba's ex-president Fulgencio Batista, 61, disdains social activities of the posh European playground, but has become a great tourist. He emerges often from his guarded villa for car trips to Spain. At home he writes profusely to justify his much-criticized regime but refrains from public pronouncements, on orders from the Portuguese government. Italy's former King Umberto lives in almost regal splendor in a great mansion in Cascais, another Lisbon suburb. His "Villa Italia" is set in a pine grove and has a fine library in which Umberto reads history. His wealth enables him to maintain a large household, including his personal physician, Count Aldo Castellano, who runs a clinic with the monarch's support for Cascais' poor fishermen. Umberto's friends describe him as a lonely man. His wife, former Princess Marie Jose, lives in Switzerland, and his son and three daughters are rarely with him. Egypt's ex-King Farouk seeks solace in exile by drifting among the resorts of France, Italy and Switzerland. Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib, who became a victim of the Egyptian revolution he helped create, was once sentenced to death by his old associates but has been allowed to live in "permanent isolation" under guard at a suburban Cairo villa. With speckled gray hair and a kindly smile, Naguib, 63, is still regarded with nostalgic affection by many Egyptians. He was their first president after Farouk was driven out of Egypt. By title, Bao Dai, Viet Nam's former emperor, must be considered the ranking member of the exile club. Once noted for his playboy ways, Bao Dai now lives quietly in France, avoids the public eye and refuses to make any statements about the war in his homeland. Burma's ousted prime minister, U Nu, lives under arrest in a military rest camp 25 miles from Rangoon at the order of Gen. Ne Win, who deposed him in 1962. Syngman Rhee, once one of the strongest of Asian leaders, is too ill to carry out his wish to return to South Korea. He has been in a self-imposed exile in Hawaii since he was toppled from the presidency in 1960.

Anti-Communist Fight Costly

EDITOR'S NOTE—The United States is battling for its principles in three vast areas of the world—Africa, Southeast Asia and Latin America. In Southeast Asia the problems are particularly vexing and the solutions costly in men and money. Here's a look at that vital area by the AP general executive for Southeast Asia. By ROBERT EUNSON
TOKYO (AP)—If Communist expansion is to be stopped in the Far East, Americans are going to have to pay more, and do more, throughout Southeast Asia. This conclusion is the result of a survey conducted among United States and local government officials in South Viet Nam, Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand. The dilemma the United States faces in Asia can be glimpsed in two areas of action—South Viet Nam and Malaysia. The South Viet Nam war, dragging on for years, has cost millions of dollars and the lives of nearly 200 Americans. It has required four missions in two years by U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and the prescription is still the same—more men, more money. Officials on the scene who think the United States should pull out of Viet Nam are in the minority. Divided Schools Most are divided between two schools of thought, those who favor a buildup similar to Korea, with at least five U.S. divisions hunting the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in the swamps, or those who believe U.S. support should continue along present lines, with increased air attacks on the Viet Cong supply routes and a blockade of North Vietnamese seaports. There are Vietnamese who believe that the "more" the United States should do includes taking over the government in Saigon. U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is not among them. He is reported to feel that direct leadership by America could prove disastrous, even possibly ending in world war. But there are Vietnamese who believe they are incapable of governing themselves. Two coups in three months haven't encouraged the feeling of national solidarity. Viet Cong elements have bombed an American theater and a crowded stadium, where GI's were playing baseball. However, neither the U.S. Embassy nor the U.S. Information Agency have been attacked in recent months. Ambassador Lodge doesn't like talking on the record, but his thoughts are said to be these: Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh has shown great promise since he took over the government in its latest explosion. In the past few weeks he has taken long strides in trying to bring order and get on with the war. He should be given a fair chance, and the United States should support him to the hilt. Unlike South Viet Nam, Malaysia doesn't need more money nor more guns at present. What these former British colonies—Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo—seem to need at the moment is stronger moral support from Washington. All-Out War Some experts believe all-out war could be sparked sooner in the jungles of Borneo than in the rice paddies of South Viet Nam. That may be part of the reason President Johnson sent Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to Asia in January. British troops already are defending North Borneo from Indonesian forces, regulars and guerrillas. Should it become necessary for Malaysia to call upon Australia and New Zealand for help, and should a shooting war develop, the United States could become entangled. The Anzus Pact, signed between Australia, New Zealand and the United States after World War II, could propel America into a full scale war against Indonesia, some fear. The brother of the late President John F. Kennedy was able to effect a cease-fire in Borneo and lay the groundwork for a conference involving Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines. But the conference couldn't agree on continuing the cease-fire. Indonesian troops already were across the line and Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio refused to pull them back. Fine Potential The area is rich in natural resources and promises much if the free world can preserve this toddler among nations long enough to get its economy going. But the collapse of the Borneo truce and the peace talks have disenchanted Malaysia government leaders in Kuala Lumpur with the United States. U.S. diplomats in Kuala Lumpur are reluctant to discuss their government's role in the Malaysia crisis, which they insist began and ended with Kennedy's mission. The Malaysians feel it hasn't ended yet, and should extend to an open warning to President Sukarno of Indonesia. In the Indonesian capital of Jakarta, where they burned the British Embassy but haven't yet put the torch to American property, the American ambassador feels the United States is doing as well as can be expected. 'Ups And Downs' "We have our ups and downs," Howard P. Jones said recently, "but in terms of the over-all U.S. position in this country, I find there has been no major shift in our welcome here." The unhappiness in Cambodia is disconcerting. The U.S. Embassy was plundered and the American flag torn from its staff recently, petulant antics which pleased Prince Norodom Sihanouk's countrymen. Sihanouk seems determined to prove his hate for America is sincere. He has been telling six million Cambodians that Americans had no right to end their aid program when he told them to end it.

Instability This kind of instability led to the burning of the embassy and may lead to an alliance between Peking and Phnom Penh unless neutrality of some kind can be reached. The trouble is that the kind of neutrality France, China's new friend in Asia, suggests and Peking accepts are not the same. President Charles de Gaulle is suggesting that Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos, all former French colonies known once as Indochina, get together and form a neutral existence. That's fine with China, so long as all the neutrals are Communists. The two million inhabitants of Laos have been living under a neutrality system for nearly two years, but Prince Souvanna Phouma, their premier, has been unable to impress the Pathet Lao with the meaning of the word neutral. As for Burma, they won't let any foreigner into Burma for more than 24 hours while Prime Minister Ne Win tries to control the six or eight leftist elements struggling to sack his government. That leaves Thailand, and up to now the Thais remain friends of Uncle Sam. Gen. Thanom Kittikachorn took over the government reins in Bangkok last December after Premier Sarit Thanarat died. The late premier had been America's friend during the five years he ruled, and since his successor was No. 2 man in that government it is expected that the status quo will hold.

Chit-Chat Farms Produce Healthy, Sober People

By BEN LIVINGOOD
READING, Pa. (AP) — The roadside sign says, "If you want to drink, that's your business. If you want to stop drinking, that's our business!" The site is a one-time lavish mountain resort near Wernersville, about 10 miles west of Reading. Its name is Chit-Chat Farms. For the last 4 1/2 years it has served as a sanctuary for desperate men and women looking for a new lease on life—an escape from the terrors of a world that only an alcoholic knows. Chit-Chat's founder is a man with a first-hand knowledge of those terrors and an unwavering determination to help others escape them. He is Richard J. Caron, a prominent Berks County industrial executive who for more than 10 years has given his time, strength and money to help alcoholics up the challenging path of recovery he once traveled. His accomplishments have brought him the Pennsylvania Medical Society's 1964 Benjamin Rush award in recognition of "outstanding contribution of personal service to the health of the people of Pennsylvania." Chit-Chat Farms began operations in October 1959. Since then it claims the successful rehabilitation of more than 300 alcoholics. Unlike the "dying-out facility," Chit-Chat offers a program of complete rehabilitation — spiritual, physical and emotional. Although it emphasizes the spiritual principles of Alcoholics Anonymous, it is not affiliated with AA. There are accommodations for 45 alcoholics who live and work together to help one another achieve lasting sobriety. Apartments for patients are modern, cheerful and decorated in the best contemporary style. There are no bars or the windows. The doors leading to 13 acres of rolling, picturesque mountain landscape are never locked. There is a "bar" open 24 hours a day, but it serves only coffee. On the staff are trained counselors, who are themselves recovered alcoholics, and a full-time resident clinical psychologist. All concerned agree that there is no cure for alcoholism—only recovery from it. It has been said that the cause of alcoholism is drinking and the only cure is total abstinence. The minimum required stay at Chit-Chat is four weeks. The belief there is that no permanent gains can be expected in less time. Physical and mental recovery are achieved through group and personal counseling and by occupational work therapy. The sole purpose of chit-chat program is to return a patient to society, the family and useful employment. Caron's philosophy is that "sobriety is the most important thing in your life without exception." "You may believe your job, or your home life, or one of many other things comes first," he explains, "but, consider, if you do not get sober and stay sober, chances are you won't have a job, a family, sanity or even life." Chit-Chat's "self-help" program is a full one. Weekdays, the patients participate in morning, afternoon and evening group therapy sessions. Films on alcoholism are shown weekly, and there is an open AA meeting each Sunday afternoon. The daily discussions bring the alcoholic face-to-face with cold, harsh facts of alcoholism—the effects of alcohol on mind, body and social behavior, and the progressive nature of alcoholism as a disease. The success of Chit-Chat Farms has several aspects. The problem drinker is temporarily removed from the pressures and temptations on which he may blame his drinking. Chit-Chat's message is carried to thousands of persons each week by way of news bulletin, published and mailed free of charge by Caron. Perhaps the philosophy of Chit-Chat is best summarized in its simple, yet provocative slogan—"Nothing is so bad, a drink won't make it worse."

Deaconess Work, WSCS Anniversary Are Topics

Delaware Water Gap — The women of the Methodist WSCS met in the Sunday School room when Mrs. Dorothy Douglas of Bristol, the president of the Northern District WSCS was guest speaker.

Mrs. Robert Kaiser and Mrs. George Court were hostesses arranging the tables and serving refreshments after the meeting. Representatives from the Portland WSCS were Mrs. F. Gardner, Mrs. John Blibbe, Mrs. Henry Schell, Mrs. Floyd LaBar, Mrs. Louis Wheeler.

Program chairman, Mrs. John Jennings, Sr., read the Psalm 100 and a prayer poem. With Mrs. Kaiser at the projector, slides were shown that depicted the principal characters in the birth and growth of the Deaconess work in U.S.A. Narrator for this was Mrs. Jennings who was assisted by readers Mrs. Elizabeth Blaine and Mrs. Arthur Lehr.

They described the 75 years of Deaconess work. Mrs. Robert Richards, president of the local WSCS then introduced Mrs. Douglas who spoke informally.

She noted that there is a deaconess from this district; Patricia Yetter of Richmond, who served at the Deaconess Home and now is working in Nome, Alaska. Our newest missionary is a middle-aged woman, Dr. Mary Kennedy of Bethlehem who is teaching in Peru.

Mrs. Douglas spoke of her in stating that women both young and older are needed in the Methodist mission work at home and abroad. She told of her recent visit to Bethany Hospital in New York when she learned that it had been founded by German Deaconesses who came over here to work. It has the unique project of keeping twenty-five beds for patients with incurable disease who would otherwise need nursing home care; and, ten beds for unweaned mothers who are rehabilitated through Christian training.

Mrs. Douglas gave the aims for the two years now to be spent in observing the 25th anniversary of the WSCS; the principal ones being 25 percent increase in membership and in giving. She enumerated the various helps for conducting a worshipful and helpful WSCS meeting.

After a brief social time and refreshments, the local women held a brief business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Richards. Mrs. Nelson Lightner, Sr. acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. E. Runyan due to illness. Mrs. Rodney Taylor read the treasurer's report for Mrs. Charles Dutt who had to leave earliest. $8.05 was reported received from sale of stencils.

Reminder was made of the band concert to be held in the church May 3, at night, with the MYF acting as ushers. Mothers in the circle were assigned their parts in the Mothers' Day service for May.

Gifts will be given to the oldest mother present, the youngest mother, and the mother with the largest family present. Mrs. Robert Kaiser and Mrs. Rodney Taylor were appointed as gift committee for the sick of the WSCS. Mrs. Orlean Lambert and Mrs. Taylor are the cleaning committee for the church during April. Mrs. Richards will announce the place for the May meeting later.

Mrs. Henry Kulp Hostess For Presbyterians

Delaware Water Gap — Mrs. Henry Kulp was hostess to the Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church, Tuesday, night at her home in East Stroudsburg, RD 3.

Her guests were Mrs. Clifford Hauser, Mrs. Russell Buzard, Mrs. Guyton Kempler, Mrs. Harry Buzard, Mrs. C. B. Rosenkrans, Mrs. Francis Drake, auxiliary president; Mrs. R. Tropansky, Mrs. H. J. LaBar, and a new member, Mrs. Narkovitch.

Flowers had been sent to four invalids and thank - you notes were read at the business meeting. Mrs. Hauser reported for the missionary sewing project that five dresses and sweaters for girls had been purchased and were ready to ship to a mission station.

The local Auxiliary will be host in May to the combined auxiliaries of Monroe County Presbyterians Churches. Mrs. Richard Carlton was appointed chairman of the refreshment committee; and Mrs. Guyton Kempler to have charge of any decorations.

The church flower committee for April is Mrs. Russell Shelberger and Mrs. Louis Smolak. The president reminded the women of Presbyterian meeting at Pottsville from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on April 24. Reminder was also given of the May Fellowship meeting of the Monroe County Council of Church Women at the Presbyterian Church in Stroudsburg.

After the business session Mrs. Tropansky led in the Bible study which was "Saints and Brothers" from Colossians. Mrs. Drake gave as the mission study a report where the missionary money goes and also about the "Forgotten Man", the migrant workers.

Mrs. Kulp served refreshments to her guests.

Armchair Tour Of Holland For Garden Club

Tannersville—Members of the Pocono Garden Club were taken on an armchair tour of Holland by Miss Margaret Van Staple, Rotary Exchange student, of Hiltversum Holland.

She told of the land of dikes, canals and windmills through the use of color slides and running commentary.

Her family resides in a town 20 miles from Amsterdam which has a population of 100,000 where the principle industries are rug manufacture, electrical instruments and chemicals.

Miss van Staple pointed out the difference between the daily routine of the average woman in Holland and that of the American woman.

Slide views included flower marts, fields of blooming tulips and narcissus and native costumes. The costumes vary in style from town to town, depending on the local Western clothing is worn in more populated centers.

Views also included points of interest in relation to architecture, which are made from red brick which is found in river beds and baked for use in building.

Charles Hogan, field representative, assisted Miss van Staple in showing the slides.

Potpourri Musical Show Benefits Building Fund

Buck Hill Falls — A potpourri musical - variety show that turned into a "you-asked-for-it" program was held Thursday night in the auditorium of The Inn, Buck Hill Falls under the auspices of the Evans Blitz American Legion Post 922 and Auxiliary.

Printed programs passed out by Miss Rosemary Harris and Miss Bonnie Lee Harris only hinted at what was in store for the nearly 300 people attending.

Lamont Nauman and his band, assisted by the youthful Hamilton Promenaders, opened the program. Nauman led the group through various well-known square dance numbers. He called his wife up from the audience to sing two country selections.

After the group vacated the stage, Ben Varvel, post commander and master of ceremonies, announced Miss Patricia Lee Falchelli, current Miss Pocono. She did the dramatic reading, "The Hollow Men" by T.S. Elliot.

Junior Miss Pocono Mountain, Miss Suzanne Rossi, and Little Miss Pocono Mountains, Miss Cheryl Chase, presented the talent routines which won them their titles last Fall. Miss Rossi danced to "Sixteen Going on Seventeen" and Miss Chase, "Little Red Riding Hood."

Don Stock, Arcade recording star, and his group were ushered on stage with screams from the audience. He announced his own numbers and promised the teens he would return following the intermission.

The second portion of the program opened on a scene in a small bistro. Mrs. John Roberts was at the piano, her husband played violin to set the mood for Mrs. John Nauman as the jilted lady. She sang "Can't Help Loving That Man" and "Laughing On the Outside."

Both selections gave full display of her range and ability. The encores, "Sentimental Journey" and "Birth of the Blues" didn't measure up to the first pieces.

A group known as "The Lonely Ones" from East Stroudsburg, with Ron Goll, Ron Wertheimer, Tom Shiffer and Bob Wertheimer, met with screaming teen approval.

was apparent as the master of ceremonies worked to present the acts in rapid succession with a problem posed by the numerous drums, amplifiers and guitars piling up backstage.

Doug McCune of Tobyhanna as "The Country Cousin" filled in to patch things together.

"The Night Owls" barbershop quartet and the choir of the Stroudsburg Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop singing in America ripped through several numbers. Memorable ones were "Hello, My Baby" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

A trio of girls, "The Strangers" who up until two weeks ago were strangers to the music, came through in top folk singing style. Paula Reisenwitz played guitar and joined close harmony with Geneva Anderson and Alexis Manhart. The girls were matching outfits of bleached tan skirts and plaid blouses as they grouped around the microphone.

Another series of screams greeted "The Jet-Fires" who plunged right into rock'n'roll. Bill Nauman, Bob Treon and Bob Franks were approved by the teens.

Comedy relief was provided by the Pocono Mountain "Bentles" headed by Bill Neith, on drums. The group of young boys, complete with "Beatle wigs" jerked and twitched through two recordings by the English teen idols. Accompanying Neith in the spasms were Ron Simpson, Don Simpson, Chipper Locher, Bill Reese, Dave Williams and Fred Martin.

Mill Price and Larry Cramer sang country and western songs and then Nauman and his two groups took the stage and then gave an introduction to Don Stock and his group, who were from the teens.

The show had a "folksy" air that would have been lost if there had been dress rehearsals. It would have been shorter than the three hour and one-half time, also.

Mrs. Verna Mortimer, director for the auxiliary, was pleased with the show. She and Mrs. Willard Albert, ticket chairman, agreed that the money realized from the program would boost the building program for the legion.

Warriors Take 2 From Millersville

MILLERSVILLE — East Stroudsburg State used strong-arm tactics to sweep a double-header from Millersville Saturday, 7-0 and 3-2, evening its season record at 4-4.

In the first game, Bob Butterworth and Dick Koch handled the throwing chores and came up with a three-hitter. John Petronis hurled in the second game, pitching a five-hitter.

ESSC Netters Win

EAST STROUDSBURG — "Tennis, anyone?" could well be the keynote to spring sports interest around East Stroudsburg State College this year.

Saturday the Warrior netmen won their 13th straight game over two years, grinding up visiting Shippensburg, 7-2.

Ron Woods, Bud Ruhl, and Werner Graef extended their undefeated records for the year for ESSC.

Graef coasted to an easy 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Don Hines, while Woods and Ruhl were forced into three sets.

The loss was the year's first for Shippensburg. They have previously defeated West Chester, and Bloomsburg. Over the past four years, Shippensburg's record has stood at 30-5.

The next ESSC match is Wednesday against a reportedly tough King's College squad. A King's player—George Delosus of Puerto Rico, was boy's national doubles champ in 1959.

Singles
Woods (ES) defeated Purnell, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4; Wagoner (S) defeated Baker, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2; Ruhl (ES) defeated Wolfley, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5; Buecher (ES) defeated Koneitsch, 6-2, 7-5; Graef (ES) defeated Hines, 6-1, 6-2; Kuban (S) defeated Kimmel, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

Doubles
Woods and Ruhl (ES) defeated Purnell and Wolfley, 6-4, 8-6; Baker and Renno (ES) defeated Wagoner and Koneitsch, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4; Buecher and Graef (ES) defeated Hines and Talmann, 6-2.

Petronis had a one hitter going with two out in the ninth, but Millersville got to him for four hits and its only runs of the two games.

Millersville whipped up a pair of pinch-hit singles, a triple, and another single for its two runs, but the tallies weren't enough to catch the Warriors.

The inning ended when Petronis forced Dave Allhouse to slap a ball at the shortstop to end the game.

There was one homer in the pair of games — ESSC's slugger Tom Washburn whaled one out of the park in the first inning of the first game with one on.

The first game shutout was saved by the Warrior's Bob Hawk when he made three sparkling defensive plays in the opener's seventh stanza.

Woes Of Men Who Must Face Koufax

By Melvin Durslag

LOS ANGELES — Kenny Boyer, the Cardinal slugger, said quietly in the locker room, head bowed, clutching a can of the owner's product.

"The winners drink two beers," mumbled Kenny. "The losers choke down one."

The impact of the Cardinal defeat that night was considerably stronger than that of the normal loss, because with it went the kind of mortification that professional athletes find hard to take.

Scoreless for 15 straight innings against Sandy Koufax, the Cardinals took solemn oaths that they would get him next time out in spring training. They agreed he was not the kind on whom a batter waits. His pitches had to be attacked.

And once on base, the Cardinals felt they could run on him. Their battle course carefully plotted, the Cards came against Koufax this time with a new intensity and with fears mastered—and he shut them out again.

Now he has pitched 24 consecutive scoreless innings against St. Louis. In the last 48 innings Los Angeles, the Cards have tapped him for only two runs, which, of course, makes Sandy something less than a cousin to St. Louis batters.

Boyer reflected the situation, and soon he was ready with his conclusion.

"It has to be the park," he insisted. "Koufax had the stuff

Fifth Red-Black Clinic Termed 'Very Successful'

EAST STROUDSBURG — A total of 110 high school coaches—including nearly a 90 per cent representation of the Lehigh Valley and Lehigh-Northampton Leagues—attended Saturday's fifth annual Red-Black football clinic at East Stroudsburg State College.

ESSC, termed the clinic "very successful."

Several scholastic coaches remarked that the clinic featured "one of the most outstanding staffs that we ever heard of at a one-day clinic."

One of the speakers, John Pont of Yale, prophesied that "the future looks great for Yale in football" while also predicting the Eli will be a strong Ivy League contender this year.

Navy's backfield coach, Hugh McWilliams, who has been mainly responsible for the development of All-American quarterback Roger Staubach, said the Middle opener this year against Penn State will be "one of the toughest openers in recent years for the Academy."

A novel approach for a clinic demonstration was employed by Dick Wisneski of Quakertown who used 11 of his senior players to demonstrate the school's passing attack. Included in the group was quarterback Jimmy Waite, the 6-4, 215-pounder mentioned to the Pennsylvania All-State team last year who has received a full scholarship to the University of Massachusetts.

Other speakers included Al Paul of Columbia and scholastic mentors Jim Fennel of Kingston, Bill Rudy of Pottsville and Harry Clarke of Reynoldsville.

Celts Don't Win Titles; Just Games

BOSTON (AP) — "We don't win any awards. We just win games."

That's how Coach Red Auerbach sums up his Boston Celtics' 108-96 victory over San Francisco Saturday night which opened their quest for a sixth straight National Basketball Association playoff title.

The second game is here Monday night and Warriors' Coach Alex Hannum promises much better things from his forces.

Auerbach made his remark in reply to a question about his views of the Bill Russell vs. Wilt Chamberlain duel.

"There are no duels or contests for us," Auerbach continued.

Boston blew the game open in the second quarter when it outscored Filisco 32-15, jumping from a two to a 20-point lead in a five-minute spurt.

Chi Chi Rodriguez of Puerto Rico made five birdies on the front nine to challenge the 54-hole leaders but a pair of back-nine bogies left him with a 68 that earned him third place and $3,300 at 280.

Deadlocked at 281 for $2,600 each were a pair of Texans, Rex Baxter Jr., and Butch Baird, and a young Californian, Al Geiberger.

Mets, Yanks Finally Win

Yanks Top Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Joe Pepitone, drove in two runs with his first hits of the season Sunday as the New York Yankees downed Baltimore 5-3, snapping a three-game losing streak and ending their worst start since 1930.

Pepitone, who had failed to hit in 14 times at bat this season, singled home Mickey Mantle in the fifth inning with what turned out to be the winning run in the Yankees' first victory. The first baseman started New York off in the fourth, doubling home Tom Tresh, who had walked. Pepitone then scored on Clete Boyer's single.

All of the Yankees' runs scored with two men out. One was set up when Oriole catcher John Orsino missed a third strike, allowing a bonus base runner.

Boyer reached first on Orsino's passed ball in the sixth, advanced to second on a sacrifice, continued to third on a wild pitch and scored on Bobby Richardson's single.

The Orioles matched the Yankees after New York got two in the fourth. Doubles by Sam Bowens and Brooks Robinson and errors by Richardson and Boyer.

They added their third run in the sixth on two walks, a fielder's choice and Orsino's sacrifice fly.

The game was held up for 75 minutes in the fourth by rain, which began falling in the first inning.

Giants Top Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays and Jesus Alou led a nine-run assault in the sixth inning that carried San Francisco to a 3-6 victory over Cincinnati Sunday. Mays added his sixth home run in the eighth.

The Giants went into the sixth trailing 5-2. Mays started the rally with a walk. He singled home two runs on his second time around. Alou also drove across a pair with a single. He later drove in a third run on an infield out.

The Reds kayoed Giants' star right-hander Juan Marchal in five innings with the victory then going to veteran southpaw Billy Pierce even though he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the Giants' big inning.

It was a good day for rookies as the Giants' Jim Hart collected three hits, scored once and knocked in a run and Chico Ruiz of Cincinnati had three singles and a double in five trips. Cincinnati 002 030 100-6 12 3

Braves Bomb L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ed Mathews scored Felipe Alou from first base with a two-out double in the 12th inning Sunday, bringing Milwaukee a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles and extending the Dodgers losing streak to five games.

Knuckleballer Bob Tiefenauer pitching in relief of Warren Spahn, shut out the Dodgers the first four innings and got the victory. He allowed only one hit.

The Dodgers haven't won since Sandy Koufax shut out St. Louis on opening night, and they've scored only two runs in their last 23 innings.

Don Drysdale had a perfect game going until the sixth when pinch hitter Len Gabrielson reached base on an error by second baseman Jim Gilliam.

Milwaukee didn't get a hit until the seventh. Then, with one out, Henry Aaron bounced a double down the third-base line and Lee Maye was hit by a pitch. A single by Ed Bailey scored Aaron, and a single by Joe Torre brought in another run, giving the Braves a 2-1 lead.

The Dodgers tied it 2-2 with an unearned run in the seventh. Mil. 000 000 200 001-3 7 3

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the number of letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 9 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
